Tea is hardly O for a restoration of gingham and prints! Is there dex of the universal use of coffee, is the fact that French looms weave for us?

Up to the eighteenth century all the coffee which was consumed in Europe came from Arabia, but in ing anecdote, is Samuel Warren, Esq., author of Herald, Spirit of the Age and Newberne Express 1699 the Dutch introduced the plant into Batavia, "Ten Thousand a Year," and other books. He rewhere it grew to perfection, and in 1710 a plant was lated the story to a gentleman of New York, who sent to the botanical gardens of Amsterdam, where furnished it to the Evening Post : it flourished. It is a settled principle of vegetable and animal life, that like produces like, consequently, that if you sow wheat you will reap wheat, if you sow oats your product will be oats, and if you sow cheat your product will be chess. Now, wheat is essentially dif-THE "SEMI-WEEKLY EXPRESS" has been reduced | lerent in every particular from cheat, different in its to THREE DOLLARS per annum, and will be supplied to berry, different in its stalk, as anybody can see by examination, and therefore they are in their nature altogether opposite. Moreover, if wheat produces lieve, is not pretended, although some of the advocates of that doctrine contend that, if sown, it will produce timothy, an idea no more absurd than the other. By this same class of persons it is also alleged that cheat will not reproduce itself, a manifest error which anybody can disprove who will try the experiment. The true reason why cheat is found in such large quantities in some fields is, that it is either mixed with the seed itself, or in the earth in which the wheat is to be sown. Sometimes we think we have clean seed, but examine closely, and almost always some grains of the filthy weed are found.—
